

Search input field with 'Search' button

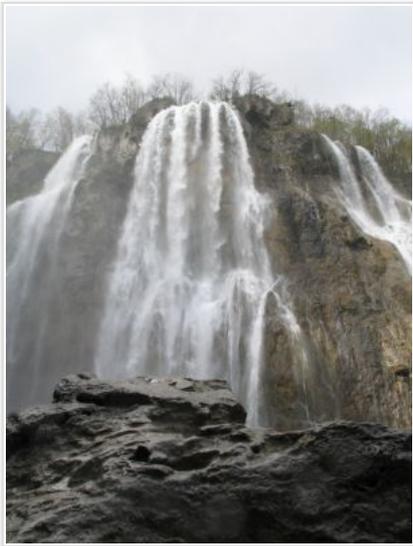

- HOME
- TRAVEL BLOG
- DESTINATIONS
- MEDIA
- SERVICES
- SHOP

A world of inspiration: Pay It Forward

This edition of 'A World of Inspiration' is brought to you by Alex Berger who hails from Arizona. This story is set in Croatia and is about the simple kindnesses that one never forgets.

Pay It Forward

3:00AM. The evening before, I'd made an important decision. After a brief period of indecision I decided to follow the advice the owners of Fulir Hostel in Zagreb Croatia had given me. With an animated charm that shared their love for their country they insisted I pause at Plitvička jezera on my way south from the Croatian capital of Zagreb. I'd resisted, having already purchased my bus ticket, but after an hour of drinking and conversing I learned that Plitvička jezera – the waterfalls were along the bus route to Split, which made it simple. I'd ride the bus to the falls, leave my bag in the luggage room, explore and then continue my trip to Split.

At 8:00AM that same morning morning I dumped myself out of bed, joined a group of 6 or 7 others who were also heading to the falls and raced across the city. We caught our bus and before long were wandering through one of the world's wonders. The waterfalls were incredible – but that is a story for another day. I finished my exploration, eventually caught the 5:00PM bus and nervously watched the countryside drift by as dark settled in. I'd made my hostel reservation at Split Hostel for 7PM. I was going to be late. Even worse, the website said that the hostel's reception closed at 8PM.

Tired, hungry and anxious I arrived in Split. The city of Split itself is fairly large, much larger in fact than I expected. The old town however is tiny and significantly smaller than I expected.

The good news was the bus station was located right by the ferry station/port which is immediately next to the old city. In typical form I was riding my the seat of my pants. No guide book, no map, no directions and no Croatian dictionary. Heart racing I quickly found an over-priced internet cafe, paid for 10 minutes, printed a blurry map off their website and set off to find the hostel at a near run (it was already 8:40).

Split is a fascinating city, it's also incredibly confusing with a warren of ancient, winding alleyways, dead end streets and small courtyards. Despite a decent sense of direction I quickly became lost.

Not expecting much I asked a local who happened to be walking by where I was, and if he'd heard of Split Hostel. Much to my astonishment he dropped what he was doing and insisted on helping me find the place. With a hearty handshake and huge smile he shared with me that he recently started English lessons and was eager to gain a little experience talking to me. He wasn't sure where the hostel was, but together we wandered around the heart of the old town.

Equally confused he eventually flagged down another local who joined up and also set to helping locate the hostel. The newcomer split off after taking us to another square and seeing things were in hand. This left the original local and I trying to find the small alley hidden behind a magazine stand that held the hostel.

About Keith Jenkins

I'm Keith Jenkins. In July 2008, I left my ten-year banking career to travel around the world. I've not looked back since.

Learn more about Keith...

Velvet Escape Newsletter

Sign up for the free Velvet Escape Newsletter!

Connect

Follow Velvet Escape on:

Partner

Popular	Latest	Tags
	True bliss in Mauritius 07/11/2013
	Experiencing Melbourne and beyond 18/11/2013
	Ten things to do in Dubai 18/11/2013
	The mysterious Ksiaz Castle 22/10/2013
	Discovering Montreal through its food 30/10/2013
	Velvet Moments: travel photos - Guggenheim Museum Bilbao 01/11/2013

Relieved to be there and to have met such incredibly warm and friendly people, I said my thanks and wandered up the stairs to the hostel. Luckily the place was still open. The whole experience left me profoundly touched. It reminded me how powerful simple, benevolent actions can be. To this day whenever I see someone with a confused look on their face I remember my Croatian guides and step forward, eager to volunteer my help – be it for 5 seconds or 15 minutes.

I have them to thank for reminding me to pay it forward.

About this week's guest writer

Alex Berger is passionate about fly-fishing, video games, web and software development, and ballroom dancing. A recent graduate of the University of Arizona, Alex founded FusionVirtual.com and spends his time researching the relationship between video games and ballroom dancing with business models and tools. In between, he pursues his other passion: traveling, and writing about it on his blog, Virtual Wayfarer.

Follow Alex 57 on Twitter.

Read other 'World of inspiration' articles:

- Memories That Last Forever
- The Man from Mandalay
- Her Generosity of Spirit
- The Rebel
- NYC
- Traveling the World Ten Days a Year
- An Inspiring Safari Field Guide
- A Familiar Face in a Foreign Land
- The Cellist & the Historian
- His First Flight
- The Man Behind the Miracle

You may also like -

Ten things to do in Dubai

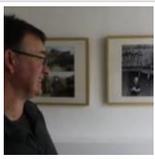

The mirrors of Castello Estense in Ferrara

Discovering Montreal through its food

Velvet Moments: travel photos - Guggenheim Museum Bilbao

Travel like a local with locals

Posted on 16/07/2009 by Keith Jenkins in Europe, People

Tags: people we meet World of inspiration

Connect

Follow Velvet Escape on:

← Sabah: a nature lover's paradise

velvet escape's Culinary Journey: Kuala Lumpur →

15 Responses to "A world of inspiration: Pay It Forward"

Andrew Meyers
05/09/2009 1:44 am

Very inspiring article Alex. Whether or not Karma exists or not, personally I get huge amounts of gratification from helping others. It makes me feel like a better person and it also makes me feel good reading stories like this knowing that there are others like me out there. Thanks for sharing this story with us Alex!

A festive holiday in Morocco
25/10/2013

A home away from home in Melbourne
20/11/2013

INSTAGRAMS
by @velvetescape

660 photos 2,055 followers

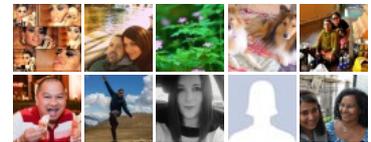

Powered by Statigram

Velvet Escape
Like

5,120 people like Velvet Escape.

Facebook social plugin

Velvet Escape has appeared in

The New York Times

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC
TRAVELER

Mashable

BBC
TRAVEL

la Repubblica

#  traveldesigned 05/09/2009 12:34 am #	What a beautiful post. It reaffirms what I truly believe: There is more good in life than evil. We must seek and be more aware of the good, strive to be more good and support one another throughout this journey called life.
 velvet 20/07/2009 5:49 pm #	Hi Rebecca, Thank you for your comment! Cheers, Keith
 Travel-Writers-Exchange.com 20/07/2009 5:19 pm #	Great post. It just goes to show that there is still kindness in the world if you are open to it. I had a similar experience in Edinburgh, Scotland. Grant it, I've been to the UK 3 times, but this was my first time on my own and staying in a hostel. People gave me directions, and I found my hostel in no time. Everyone was really friendly and didn't mind helping me out. I do my best to help people out whenever I can. I live in the Phoenix, AZ area and the state is spread out; you need a car to travel to places. I usually end up helping locals out and they've been in the state longer than me 😊

 Karen Bryan 17/07/2009 4:26 pm #	I was in Croatia twice in April 2009, in Zadar and then Istria. The locals are really friendly and helpful and you don't get the impression that they are trying to rip you off with inflated prices. One of my travelling companions didn't have change for the ferry row boat in Zadar and the ferryman just said not to worry about it. She felt bad as she was the only passenger so returned later to pay him.
 velvet 17/07/2009 4:30 pm #	Hi Karen, Thank you for your comment. I really should make a trip out there. I've heard so many great things about Croatia. Cheers, Keith
 velvet 17/07/2009 12:42 pm #	Thanks Alex for sharing this wonderful story! You're a star! Cheers, Keith
 Alex Berger 17/07/2009 9:22 am	Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to participate in this fantastic series and share this story. Gloria – definitely dive into Croatia, it is an oft' overlooked jewel.

#
 velvet 16/07/2009 8:13 pm #	Thanks for your comment Gloria. We have that in common: I've never been to Croatia but would love to go! It's definitely closer for you! Best regards, Keith
 Gloria 16/07/2009 8:04 pm #	Another great post! I have always want to visit Croatia: one more good reason to go! Gloria

Trackbacks/Pingbacks

1. A world of inspiration: Amazing Thailand, Amazing People | velvet escape's blog - 03/09/2009
[...] Pay It Forward [...]
2. A world of inspiration: A Confident Smile | velvet escape's blog - 20/08/2009
[...] Pay It Forward [...]
3. A World of Inspiration – July Guest Post | VirtualWayfarer - A Place For Intellectual Musings - 06/08/2009
[...] which he published on July 15th. If you have a few minutes definitely head over and check it out: A World of Inspiration – Pay It Forward by Alex Berger. Definitely take a few minutes to view some of the other posts as well – they're truly [...]
4. A world of inspiration: Ghosts of the Past | velvet escape's blog - 06/08/2009
[...] Pay It Forward [...]
5. A world of inspiration: A Survivor | velvet escape's blog - 23/07/2009
[...] Pay It Forward [...]

Leave a Reply

Name (Required)

Mail (will not be published) (Required)

Website

Please notify me of follow-up comments via e-mail

Explore Velvet World

A fun and easy way to find travel inspiration on the Velvet Escape travel blog.

Velvet Connect

Velvet Connect provides social media advisory services to individuals, companies and organisations.

The Happy Explorer

Visit The Happy Explorer travel photo blog for visual treats from around the world.

ABOUT VELVET ESCAPE | CONTACT VELVET ESCAPE | LINKS

Copyright © 2008-2013, Velvet Escape. All Rights Reserved. All content on this site is the copyrighted property of the writer and Velvet Escape. Written permission must be obtained before reprint in online or print media. Reprinting Velvet Escape content without permission and/or payment is theft and punishable by law.

This site uses cookies  More info